DETAILED ACTION

Claims 1-4 are pending.

Claim Objections

Claims 1-4 are objected to because of the following informalities: improper punctuation used in claims 1 and 4; and grammatical errors in claims 1-3. Examiner suggests replacing comma on line 3 of claim 1 with semicolon, and omitting comma on line 3 of claim 4. Examiner suggests replacing "Apparatus" on line 1 of claims 1-3 with "An apparatus".

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 1 and 4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claim 4 recites the limitation "The method" in line 1 of claim 4. There is insufficient antecedent basis for this limitation in the claim.

Claims 1 and 4 recite the limitation " Internet/Ethernet". These claims can be interpreted in several contradictory ways, and subsequently are determined to be indefinite. For purposes of the following art rejections, the limitation of the aforementioned claims are interpreted as, "Internet or Ethernet".

Priority

Claim to provisional application 60/252899 has been made in this application.
The effective filing date for the subject matter defined in the pending claims in the application is November 27, 2000.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1,3 and 4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Venkatraman et al. (US Patent 5,956,487), hereinafter referred to as Venkatraman.

In reference to claim 1, Venkatraman shows an embedding web access mechanism that provides network accessible user interface functions, (column 3, lines 5-7 and Figure 1). Venkatraman shows the web access mechanism to comprise:

- A controlling and supervising means (computer system with user interface), (column 5, lines 51-60; Figure 2; column 7, lines 30-36; and Figure 4);
- Web server equipment connected to the controlling and supervising means to enable it to be connected to the Internet/Ethernet, (column 3, lines 13-26; column 4, lines 26-28; column 7, lines 24-29; and Figure 1);
- An Internet/Ethernet hub (communication path), (column 3, line 62 to column 4, line 4 and column 4, lines 25-27).

- Control and supervising devices (lab equipment devices) coupled to the hub, (column 3, lines 55-61).

In reference to claim 4, Venkatraman discloses a method for employing a device with an embedded web server, in order to enable access of the device control interface via a remote location (column 2, lines 27-30 and column 2, lines 37-41). Venkatraman explicitly discloses the embedded web access method to comprise:

- Feeding information from means for controlling and supervising the operation (i.e. computer system with user interface), to a web server, (column 5, line 65 to column 6, line 5); and
- Transmitting the information via the web server to the Internet/Ethernet, (column 3, lines 27-33);
- Receiving the information from the Internet/Ethernet, (column 3, lines 17-21);
- Using the received information to modify the operation, (column 3, lines 21-26 and column 3, lines 35-39).

In reference to claim 3, Venkatraman shows the embedding web access mechanism to further comprise a means for transmitting information from the control and supervising devices in the form of electronic text, which is inclusive of e-mail (Venkatraman column 3, lines 29-42).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 2 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Venkatraman as applied to claims above, and further in view of sci.electronics.misc (retrieved from Google Newsgroup).

In reference to claim 2, Venkatraman discloses a supervising means (computer system with user interface) coupled to an Internet/Ethernet hub (communication path), (column 5, lines 51-60; Figure 2; column 7, lines 30-36; and Figure 4;). However, the reference fails to disclose the apparatus permitting operation of 1/8 DIN and 1/16 DIN devices. Nonetheless, 1/8 DIN and 1/16 DIN devices were well known in the art at the time of the invention, as further evidenced by Admission.

Sci.electronics.misc discloses 1/8 DIN and 1/16 DIN controllers as conventional controller devices that are manufactured and distributed for controlling heaters (i.e. ovens and chambers). One of ordinary skill in the art would have been motivated to accordingly modify the embedded web access mechanism, so as to operate a variety of lab equipment and measurement instruments via remote access (Venkatraman column 1, lines 24-27 and column 2, lines 37-41).
